What does an employer really want from you as a job applicant? Aside from your industry relevant skills and training, many businesses are also looking for other key attributes when hiring new staff. The good news for TAFE Queensland Gold Coast graduates is; no matter what you studied, whether it was plumbing, nursing or information technology, you will have had to learn the top four skills on the list.

Interpersonal and communication skills.
Able to express your ideas clearly and confidently in speech and in writing. Think about your contribution to class discussions and time spent on written theory assessments.

Passion and drive.
A determination to get things done, make things happen and obvious interest in the industry. Your commitment and determination to complete your TAFE qualification clearly demonstrates your passion for your chosen career.

Industry knowledge.
Knowing how the business and industry works. Think about how much you already know about the industry from your time in class, work experience and practical training.

Team work skills.
Ability to work confidently and coherently within a group. What about that group assignment you had to work on? Or when you were given a group task to complete in class?

HORTICULTURE

Horticulture is one of Australia’s fastest-growing industries, closely linked to urban development and lifestyle. It includes maintaining parks, gardens, golf courses, as well as plant nurseries and landscaping. Climate change is increasingly becoming a significant topic for this sector. An interest in the natural environment and a love for working outdoors are just some of the qualities that may attract you to a career in horticulture. With conservation and environmental planning continuing to play an increasingly important role in our society, employment growth in this industry is expected.
A passion for boating, the water and an outdoor lifestyle are some of the attractions for a career in the marine industry. The Australian boating industry employs over 29,000 people across 2,500 businesses including boat building and repair, fit-out and refit, marina services, boat operations and tourism. The industry may be suitable to you if you enjoy practical work, have an aptitude for technical activities and are able to solve problems.

WORK HEALTH AND SAFETY

As an Occupational health and safety officer you will identify hazards, assess risks and put appropriate safety controls in place and provide advice about accident prevention and occupational health to management and employees. Traditionally, occupational health and safety officers have been employed in the manufacturing, construction, health and minerals industries. However, positions are now available in management consultancies and commercial institutions, such as banks, hospitals, insurance companies, government organisations and service-based organisations.
UNIVERSITY PATHWAYS

TAFE Queensland Gold Coast’s articulation agreements with key universities allow you to further your studies and gain credit towards a university degree. This allows you to develop strong practical skills and theoretical knowledge from completing both a Diploma and a Degree, often in the same time it takes to complete one. With your TAFE Queensland Gold Coast Diploma you can work in industry whilst you continue your studies.
